I Will Send You Information

In regard to a plan I have perfected, whereby you can increase your earning power from 50 to 100 per cent in a few months. You merely follow the plan I outline. The method I adopt gets results. You will be enthusiastic when I send you particulars. If your education has been neglected, leave that to me. I will take care of you in that respect. I helped Wm. Dobbins, an ambitious country boy. He now draws $5,000.00 annually. Ada Menafee followed my advice and in a short time had a position at $1,450.00. The information I gave her, I can send you. If you want to be somebody—to earn a good salary—to do something in the world—we will tell you how. I will also explain how you can defray expenses while preparing for success. Drop a card NOW, to-day. This will mean more to you than to me. The little effort of addressing me at Columbus, may mean a lifetime of prosperity to you. State age and education. I will answer by return mail. Address,

Party Promises Crushed.

Washington, July 8.—The tariff bill was passed by the senate just after 11 tonight by a vote of 45 to 34.

Ten Republican insurgents voted against the bill. They are Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Burdett, Clapp, Crawford, Cummins, Dilliver, La Follette and Nelson. McHenry of Louisiana was the only Democrat recorded in the affirmative.

As it passed the senate the bill contains almost 400 paragraphs. The senate made 810 amendments to the house provisions, many of which were added today. Consequently the enrolling clerks are finding the preparation of the bill for the house an arduous task. They have been following as closely upon the heels of the senate as was possible, and have the work well in hand.

The senate sat continuously today from 10 in the morning until 11:18 to-night, stopping neither for luncheon nor dinner. Most of the many speeches during the day and evening were brief and in the main the day was devoted to action upon amendments.

The most interesting occurrences of the sitting were the adoption of amendments by Senator Bradley of Kentucky and Senator Curtis of Kansas, the former exempting tobacco "in the hand" from the internal revenue tax of 6 cents a pound, and the latter placing a countervailing duty on crude petroleum shipped from countries which impose duty on oil importations from the United States. The action on tobacco was a real surprise. The senate has frequently refused to remove the tax.

A large number of minor amendments were added during the day by the finance committee, but most of the changes suggested by other senators were laid on the table.

The closing scenes in the senate chamber were tame, indeed. Mr. La Follette's closing speech was earnest, but not especially animated. He had a slim audience on the floor and the galleries were not crowded. Senators remained in the seats only because required to be there to vote.

The result of the vote on the bill had been long discounted, as there was no doubt of its passage by the usual finance committee majority. The debates during the day were characterized by attacks, veiled and otherwise, upon Senator Aldrich, who succeeded, as usual, in voting down amendment after amendment.

Mr. Gore, the blind senator of Oklahoma, delivered a final denunciation of the entire system of protection as exemplified in the bill. He compared Mr. Aldrich to the shepherd of a hungry flock, saying that his lambs had all been tamed until they would eat out of his hand. Some had even taken to strong drink, taking as "their" crude and refined petroleum.

Said he: "Mary had one lamb, and it followed her to school one day; the chairman of the finance committee has 50 lambs, and they follow him every day."

Suggesting that the president should promptly veto the tariff bill, in fairness to his campaign pledges, Mr. Gore added:

"Then it may not be so far-stretching a prophecy to say that the next president of the United States may be an 'African.'"

This reference to Mr. Roosevelt was received with laughter. The failure of the senate to keep the promise made to the people by the Republican party respecting a revision of the tariff downward was the theme of Senator Beveridge as the debate on the bill was drawing to a close.

"Our votes," he said, "shall be cast in harmony with our party's pledge as voiced by our party's leader and the nation's president."

Hee! Haw!

Intelligent people cannot help smiling in derision when reading such remarks as the following from an editorial in a recent issue of Collier's Weekly:

"It is President Taft, not the senate, that must make good to the people. The senate made no promises. President Taft must either veto the tariff bill or prove to the people, face to face on the platforms where his promises were made that the tariff bill which he signs is a substantial revision downward."

Also: "Let there be no mistake about the facts. In the senate the tariff is not being revised downward. The people will know this a few months hence by the prices they pay. But it is important that they should know it now."

Why do the people who understand, smile at such frenzy in Collier's Weekly now? Because Collier's Weekly was as frantic during the campaign last year in behalf of the election of Mr. Taft as it is excited now over the very situation it so zealously helped to bring about.

The rest of us must grin and bear it, therefore we can enjoy a snicker at the expense of such unreliable "moulders of public opinion" as Collier's Weekly. For even Collier's Weekly can't "make good" to those of its readers it so willingly fooled into believing Mr. Taft campaign promises.

It's the same old story—some of the people all the time, including the "gigantic intellect" of Collier's Weekly. Haw! Haw! also Poo! and Piffle!

In 1912 the people will pick an entirely different sort of man from Cincinnati to be their president and fulfill campaign promises.

Harmon as a Leader

From a long editorial entitled "Wanted, A Leader" which appeared in the Akron Times of July 3 the following paragraphs are quoted:

"Governor Harmon has many advantages of prospective leadership. He is steadily, surely making good in a state which he has already put in the doubtful column and whose political strength he is wisely husbanding against the day when it is to be needed and he can command it for the right. In age, in experience, in the estimation of the whole country, he is of presidential stature. Upon the probably decisive issue of the next national election Governor Harmon has long stood substantially and reliably, where today are standing or are ready to stand, the insurgent Senators from enough states, together with his own, to win the fight."

"As much as this cannot be said of any other Democrat now in sight or within reasonable prospect. He has the confidence and the good will of all Democrats, of whatever past factions, who would in any event really vote for any Democrat. His party loyalty in the last campaign was not less marked than his skill in winning his state."

"So far as can now be seen the question lies largely in the keeping of the Democracy of Ohio."

Here's The Whole Miserable Story.

Organs of the high tariffites have caught that spirit of contempt for facts, reason, common sense and truth which the followers of Aldrich in the Senate have all along manifested. Confronted with the assertion that the new schedules will make the poor man's cottons and woolsens, his shoes and sugar, and most of her necessities of life as hard or harder to get than now, a besotted protectionist organ rejoins with the statement that champagne and diamonds are taxed higher than ever.

Congress has lowered rates on numerous unimportant items, and on some other schedules, like steel, where by the admission of such men as Carnegie, no protection at all is needed any more. It has, however, refused to lower rates on other schedules where trust extortion is extreme and where this bears on the poorer classes heavily.

This congress refuses to try to tax the incomes of such wealthy tax-dodgers as the Vanderbilts, Morgans and others whose personal property returns recently made are the scandal and jest of the country. Yet it fines every life insurance policyholder for trying to put his family above want, for arranging to care for it instead of leaving the burden of it on the State. And it has raised the rate on diamonds nearly as much as it has on cottons. This is what we are coming to. Here's where we are at.

Error Corrected.

A confusion of details in a recent article on the management of the state fire marshal's office during the past year under the Rogers regime. The error occurred in a paragraph relating to the employment of stenographers at Cleveland, to the effect that the stenographer employed by Hy Davis "was paid by the department at the rate of $60 per month for three months and $75 per month for eight months, although the branch office of the department in Cleveland has a stenographer who is paid a salary of $50 per month," with this remark by way of comment: "Thus the state paid Hy Davis more for the service of his stenographer for the 10 or 12 days he put in each month as special counsel than was paid the department's stenographer at Cleveland for full time."

As will be seen by the sentence quoted the paragraph was written under the misunderstanding that the stenographer in question was employed by Hy Davis to do such stenographic work as he would need during the time he put in as special counsel. It frequently happens that stenographers outside of those regularly employed by the department are employed to take testimony, make typewritten copies of reports, etc., for which they are paid direct, and their names together with the compensation paid appear in the same record of expenses where the names and compensation of regular employees are recorded. So that there may be no further misunderstanding in this particular it is here stated that the stenographer referred to was Miss Flora Wenban and she was the stenographer regularly at the branch office in Cleveland during the past year at the salary mentioned. She held the position during the two years Hy Davis was fire marshal. It was a confusion of these details which led to a misstatement that was entirely unintentional, in evidence of which this statement is made voluntarily by way of correction.

During the month of May, this year, another stenographer, Miss Inez Green was employed in the fire marshal's branch office at Cleveland, at a salary of $50 per month, as shown by the record. Fire Marshal Zuber found both these stenographers on the pay roll when he took possession of the office June 5. Miss Wenban resigned June 8, after Fire Marshal Zuber removed Hy Davis, and Miss Green resigned July 1. There is now only one stenographer employed in the branch office at Cleveland.

Taft Goes Back on His Promise

Progressive Republican senators appear to have good ground for their complaint that President Taft has declined to give them even the slightest aid and comfort in their struggle against the infamous Aldrich and his tariff measure, although he was not slow to express himself in radical fashion before election.

Throughout the campaign Judge Taft was unequivocal in his attitude. The tariff must be revised, he declared repeatedly, and it must be revised in accordance with a downward swing, for the reason that the industries of the country had outgrown the old rates. But throughout the senatorial debate the President has maintained what he may regard as discreet silence, but which appears to the radical element of his party to be objectionable vacillation. Indeed, it would seem that he was rather inclined to assist the reactionary program, to judge from his action in the corporation tax matter.

It is natural that the western progressives should feel aggrieved. They have believed that they represented the position taken by Mr. Taft as head of their party during the campaign, the position on which the Republican candidates were elected, the position which has kept the Republican party in control. They feel that the President, through his silence, if not by secretly assisting the reactionaries, has tacitly, at least, given his assent to the Aldrich-Cannon program.

Unless it transpires that tariff rates are brought back to a point considerably below that fixed by the House—and the hope of such an outcome is more than remote—the only way the President can redeem his pledges is to add the stamp of his official disapproval to the whole conglomerate mass of inequities. He cannot rightly stand in one place before election and in another three months after inauguration.

Governor Suits Himself.

Some criticism of Governor Harmon has been indulged in by certain fault-finding Republican papers because the governor has not consulted the Republican state machine or local committees in the appointing of Republicans on state boards.

Will any Republican please furnish the name of any Republican governor who ever consulted Democratic committees before appointing Democratic members of these same boards?

If they think to cast reflection on Governor Harmon because he does not consult the Republican organization before making Republican appointments then they cast the same reflection on every Republican who ever sat in the office of Governor of Ohio.
